

QUINCYAN OF THE WEEK!

Jennifer Gervasi was born and raised in southeast Asia (Philippines). She graduated from the International School (of Manila) in 1971, then moved to the United States and graduated from Denison University in Ohio in 1975. She is married to Robert Gervasi and has three daughters, Clare (29), Irene (27) and Sarah (21).

Jen began her career in New York and lived there for thirty years. While in NY she held executive positions in the fashion and home décor industries and launched a home collection for designer Calvin Klein. She then became CEO of a Louisville, Kentucky based pottery business. During that time she met her husband, Robert, and they subsequently married.

Gervasi considers her career now as being a full-time volunteer. She is on the Board of Directors of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra and the Quincy Art Center, a volunteer for Quincy Community Theatre and has been heavily involved with Quincy Society of Fine Arts as well and Quincy University. At QU she has transformed the alumni bulletin to a full blown magazine that promotes the university and its mission through interesting articles about students, faculty and alumni. She partners with her husband to advance the mission of the university through friendraising and fundraising.

Quincy and QuincyBuzz are very glad that Jen and her fundraising skills now call Quincy home.
